RE: WC Docket No. 05-196

To Whom It May Concern:

Ruddata Corporation, dba VCI Internet Services, is a small CLEC in Western Kentucky. Our primary business is dial-up Internet Access. We are currently in the test mode with voice services, including VoIP. We have only 4 test sites utilizing our VoIP phone service. We do not have any customers paying for VoIP services.

The test sites were informed verbally that 911 service is not available with our VoIP service when they inquired/agreed to test the VoIP lines. We are sending a letter by US Postal Service Mail today to these test sites to formally explain that we do not have 911 service available over the VoIP lines and request an acknowledgement of their understanding of such. Warning stickers to be placed on every piece of VoIP equipment will be enclosed. We will require these sites to respond in writing that they understand there is no 911 service and that they have complied with our request to place warning stickers on the equipment.

If we do not receive the requested acknowledgment, their VoIP lines will be terminated on August 30, 2005. Paper copies of these acknowledgments will be kept in files in our business office.

These test sites are long-time business associates and we anticipate 100% response from them by August 29, 2005.

Thank You,

Stephen T. Rudd
